Home Show Electric FYI:

Know your electrical "load". How much equipment will you be using and how much power does it require?
 Amperage (Amps) is the most useful means of ordering electrical service. Figure 1 Amp per 100 Watts.
 Voltage is equally important. US Standard is 120v ("wall outlets"), 120/240v (commonly called "220") and 120/208v (commonly called "three phase")

Amperage = Watts divided by Volts. 100 Watts / 120 Volts = .84 Amps

Cash registers, stereo equipment, tv's and most electronic equipment generally require 1-5 amps @ 120v.

Ovens, refrigerators and freezers generally require 5-15 Amps @120v.

Portable display lighting, track lighting and high end fixtures generally require 10-20 Amps @120v.

Heavy duty ovens, drink machines and air conditioners generally require 15-30 Amps @ 120/240v.

Large hot tubs or spas and restaurant industry grade equipment generally require 30-50 Amps @120/240v.

In some cases your equipment may require 120/208v "three phase". Please call Bylites at 501-372-4488

if you require three phase or if you have any questions regarding your electrical needs.
